SCHOOL REPORT.

To the Citizens of Auburn the following Report is respectfully submitted:

Our schools have perhaps been as prosperous during the past year as can be expected under existing circumstances. In view of the defects in our educational system, we have no particular fault to find with any school; but leaving the accompanying statistics and list of names to speak for the year just ending, let us consider what can be done for the improvement of our schools during the coming year. It is of the greatest importance that pupils should attend school constantly, and, also, that they be in their places promptly morning and afternoon.

You will see, from the roll of names in this report, how few have been promptly present every day during any term of the year. This evil is too obvious to need discussion; you are well aware that the matter cannot be regulated by teachers; that the responsibility rests almost wholly with you, the parents.

You will notice that the largest districts in town, were one, two and three, having in all seventy-eight pupils, report but ten who were neither absent nor tardy during the winter term and thirteen in the summer. Twelve of the thirteen belonging to one district. Of course there are times when absence from school is excusable, but so much irregularity can be avoided, and I appeal to you to improve upon this state of things the coming year.

I also ask your cooperation, which you have given to some extent in past months, with the next committee in regard to text-books, a matter which has been brought before you again and again. While a variety of books for reference would be desirable, a uniformity of those in which daily lessons are assigned is essential to real success in the school room; different kinds of geographies, arithmetics and grammars in a school, give rise to an unwarrantable number of classes and to those of so few numbers that there cannot be found the interest which is likely to be awakened by competition, in larger classes, and which leads to prosperity in study as naturally and surely as in any business of life.

If parents would carefully ascertain the title in full before purchasing, the right books could be more easily obtained, and the classes would gradually diminish in number, giving the teacher more time for each class, and the greater interest would be forthcoming. I respectfully recommend that text-books of the following kinds be purchased by those requiring new ones for the coming summer terms :

Arithmetics—Greenleaf's National, Common School, New Intellectual and Primary; Geographies—Warren's Common School and Primary; Readers—Monroe's Series; Spellers—Worcester's Pronouncing (Cambridge Edition); History—Campbell's Concise School History of U. S.; Writing books—Payson, Dunton & Scribner's; I make no suggestion with regard to the grammar, believing that a change is especially needed in this book, and having done nothing about it during the year, since it is lawful to make a complete change in only one series of books yearly.

Your attention has also often been called to the plain fact that the schools are very destitute of maps, globes, charts and reference books. A small amount of money, appropriated annually, by the town, would, in a few years, bring about great improvement in this respect.

I have been glad to find recorded, in School Registers, the names of so many citizens who have visited the schools, and I ask you to assist in the school work of our town by still more frequent visits: it will prove to teachers and scholars, your interest in what they are doing, and serve as a stimulus and encouragement to them, while you will be able to see more clearly the needs of the schools.

One thing more I would earnestly recommend,—that the Town System of school management be adopted in Auburn. A committee of three persons could spend more time for the schools than one can possibly do. Much might be accomplished by a more extended supervision and a general examination of teachers whom the committee of three employed, would be more likely to result in obtaining thorough instructors than when prudential committees employ and afterwards send to the superintending committee for examination, sometimes on the very day when the term begins, and when the school is waiting the presence of the teacher. Examination should precede the employment of teachers. Let us try the new system, for one year at least; let us be ready to thoroughly test any measure which may result in benefit to the youth of our town; let us endeavor, in every practicable way, to improve our schools to such an extent, that it might be said, The schools of Auburn are better in all respects than those of any other town of its size in New Hampshire.
